CAL PERFORMANCES PRESENTS A JOURNEY INTO THE HEART OF MIDDLE EASTERN MUSIC WITH THE MASTERS OF PERSIAN CLASSICAL MUSIC SUNDAY, MARCH 12 AT 7:00 P.M. IN ZELLERBACH HALL

BERKELEY, February 2, 2006 — Favorites with Cal Performances’ audiences, the Masters of Persian Classical Music return to Zellerbach Hall to showcase the rich heritage of Persian classical music and ancient Sufi and contemporary poetry on Sunday, March 12 at 7 p.m. The Grammy-nominated ensemble consists of four of Iran’s finest musical artists: revered singer Mohammad Reza Shajarian; kamancheh (spiked fiddle) virtuoso Kayhan Kalhor; tar (plucked lute) and setar (Iranian sitar) master Hossein Alizadeh and tombak (hand drum) specialist Homayoun Shajarian.

MOHAMMAD REZA SHAJARIAN

Regarded as a national treasure in Iran, Mohammad Reza Shajarian is the world’s undisputed master of classical Persian singing. He is perhaps Iran’s most diverse and prolific singer and has a huge repertoire of recorded works. In Iranian music, traditional singing is considered one of the most difficult arts to master. Motivated by his own deep spirituality, Shajarian combines classical songs and radif, a classical repertoire passed down orally from master to student, with improvisation to create music that is rooted in tradition and expressive of the singer’s own moods. In Iran, Shajarian is widely considered the embodiment of the perfect singer and a major source of inspiration to other musicians. In 1999, UNESCO presented him with the prestigious Picasso Medal and in 2000, the Iranian Ministry of Culture declared him the best classical vocalist.

Born in 1940 in the northeastern city of Mashhad, Iran, Shajarian began singing at the age of five under the supervision of his father. At 12, he began studying with the great masters Ahmad Ebadi and Esmaeel Mehrtash, learning the vocal styles of singers from previous generations. He soon started playing the santur (hammered dulcimer) in order to better understand and perform the traditional repertoire. He rose to prominence in the 1960s with his distinct style of singing, at once technically flawless, powerful and intensely emotional. Since then, he has had an illustrious career researching, teaching and performing at Tehran University's Department of Fine Arts and the Iranian National Radio and Television Orchestra as well as making numerous recordings. He performs regularly in Iran and throughout the world.

HOSSEIN ALIZADEH

Teacher, composer, conductor, arranger, and master of the tar and setar Hossein Alizadeh was born in Tehran in 1951, studied at the School of Music of the University of Tehran, and received his bachelor’s degree in 1975. While pursuing his formal education he also studied radif with masters including Houshang Zarif, Ali Akbar Shahnazi and Yousef Foroutan. Upon the completion of his studies, he became the conductor, setar and tar soloist for the Iranian National Orchestra of Radio and Television. In the 1980s, he furthered his musical education by studying composition and musicology at the University of Berlin.

In 2000, the Iranian Ministry of Culture declared him the best contemporary artist. As a teacher he has trained many young musicians and has written and published a number of etudes for tar and setar. He has composed many groundbreaking works of contemporary and neoclassical Iranian music and recorded the entire body of the radif based on the interpretation of Mirza Abdollah. Alizadeh performs extensively throughout the United States, Europe and Asia and has appeared on many radio and television programs around the world. He has taught at the University of Tehran, the Tehran Music Conservatory and the California Institute of the Arts.

KAYHAN KALHOR

Kayhan Kalhor is a virtuoso on the kamancheh. Kahor is well-known for his performances with Yo-Yo Ma's Silk Road Project. He was born in Tehran in 1963 and began his musical studies by age seven. A child prodigy, he was invited at age 13 to work with the Iranian National Orchestra of Radio and Television, where he performed for five years.

At 17, Kalhor began playing with the most prestigious arts organization in Iran while continuing to study radif with a variety of masters. In his extensive travels throughout Iran, Kahor learned and incorporated the musical traditions of different regions including Khorasan and Kurdistan into his own music. He later studied Western classical music in Rome, Italy and Ottawa, Canada. He has composed for some of Iran’s best-known performers as well as for the Kronos Quartet and Yo-Yo Ma. Kahor has toured the world as a soloist and with ensembles performing Persian and Indian improvisations. The New York Times called him, “a fiery improviser who moves from sighing, songful lines to fiercely percussive pizzicato fusillades and swirling arpeggios.”

HOMAYOUN SHAJARIAN

Homayoun Shajarian, born in 1975, is the son of Mohammad Reza Shajarian. He began playing tombak at the age of five. He later attended the Tehran Conservatory of Music. Since 1991 he has played in a vast array of ensembles in Europe, Iran and the United States. In addition to the tombak, Homayoun plays the kamancheh and studies Persian singing with his father, bringing this great vocal tradition to a new generation. In October 2005, he released his third solo album, Naqsh-e Kiyal (Sketches of Imagination).
