Paramount Theatre

World Stage

Aida Cuevas with Mariachi Juvenil Tecalitlán
*A Tribute to Juan Gabriel

Program: Aida Cuevas pays tribute to one of Mexico's most prolific and beloved songwriters in this tribute to Juan Gabriel. Over her 40-year music career, Cuevas has sung many hits composed by Gabriel, and here she revisits audience favorites such as "Te Lo Pido Por Favor," "Te Sigo Amando," and "La Diferencia." She is joined by Mexico City-based Mariachi Juvenil Tecalitlán, with special guests on requinto, accordion, percussion, and keyboards.

Berkeley RADICAL: This performance is part of the Women's Work thematic strand, which shines a spotlight on remarkable female artists—directors, musicians, and choreographers—and explores the role of women creators in the arts and beyond.

Theater

Schaubühne

An Enemy of the People

by Henrik Ibsen

Directed by Thomas Ostermeier

In a version by Florian Borchmeyer

Program: Berlin's Schaubühne theater presents a radically revised adaptation of An Enemy of the People, Ibsen's potent 1882 drama about individual and social responsibility. The story of a whistleblower in a small town whose efforts to speak truth to power are shut down by his self-interested neighbors, the play both implicates and exhilarates its audience in a conversation about the perils of democratic capitalism. Directed by Thomas Ostermeier, for decades a leading creative voice and provocateur in European theater, the production has received strong reactions from audiences and critics alike, largely because of its controversial handling of the play's climactic scene.

Berkeley RADICAL: This performance is part of the Citizenship thematic strand, which spotlights the human side of the current debate on immigration and nationalism. By sharing unique perspectives on the threats to—and responsibilities of—citizenship, the artists included here illustrate the universal need for belonging and home, and invoke the very real sense of urgency and peril that pervades the world today.

Tickets: $30-98 (prices subject to change)

Dance

Sasha Waltz & Guests

Körper

Program: In her signature work, Körper (Bodies), Berlin choreographer Sasha Waltz explores the visceral tangle of humanity from the perspectives of history, science, and architecture. Waltz premiered Körper in her first season as artistic director of the Schaubühne Theater in 2000 and now revives the work as she is poised to take on the co-directorship of the Staatsballett Berlin next year. Set on 13 male and female dancers, the movement evokes a staggering range of embodied experience through a series of living tableaux, both epic and intimate; the dancers morph and converge, meld and squirm, join and are torn apart, creating a powerful and unforgettable emotional landscape. Please note: this work includes nudity.

Berkeley RADICAL: This performance is part of the Women's Work thematic strand, which shines a spotlight on remarkable female artists—directors, musicians, and choreographers—and explores the role of women creators in the arts and beyond.

Barber Shop Chronicles

A Fuel, National Theatre, and West Yorkshire Playhouse Co-production

by Inua Ellams

Directed by Bijan Sheibani

Designed by Rae Smith

Program: Barber Shop Chronicles, created by Nigerian-born, UK-based poet and playwright Inua Ellams, explores the diversity of black male identity through the rituals and verbal banter of the urban barbershop. The cast riffs on topics both personal and political—from sports to race relations to views about fatherhood and masculinity—as we eavesdrop on conversations in six different barbershops in London, Lagos, Johannesburg, Accra, Kampala, and Harare over the course of a single day.

Berkeley RADICAL: This performance is part of the Citizenship thematic strand, which spotlights the human side of the current debate on immigration and nationalism. By sharing unique perspectives on the threats to—and responsibilities of—citizenship, the artists included here illustrate the universal need for belonging and home, and invoke the very real sense of urgency and peril that pervades the world today.

The Routes of Slavery (1444-1888)

Jordi Savall, director

Program: Jordi Savall returns with The Routes of Slavery (1444-1888), which unites more than two dozen musicians from 15 countries on three continents in a reverent celebration of the influence of enslaved people on the culture of the Americas and Europe. Vocalists from Mali, Colombia, Catalonia, Madagascar, Morocco, Europe, Mexico, Brazil, and West Africa with historic readings intertwined throughout.

Berkeley RADICAL: This performance is part of the Citizenship thematic strand, which spotlights the human side of the current debate on immigration and nationalism. By sharing unique perspectives on the threats to—and responsibilities of—citizenship, the artists included here illustrate the universal need for belonging and home, and invoke the very real sense of urgency and peril that pervades the world today.

Orchestra

Daniel Barenboim and the West-Eastern Divan Orchestra (West Coast Debut)

Daniel Barenboim, conductor

Program:

R. Strauss/Don Quixote, Op. 35

Tchaikovsky/Symphony No. 5 in E minor, Op. 64

Nearly 20 years ago, Israeli conductor Daniel Barenboim and Palestinian scholar Edward Said founded this orchestra of Israelis and Arabs as a model for cooperation across the brutal divides of the Middle East. In doing so, they hoped to replace ignorance with education, knowledge, and understanding; to humanize the “other”; and to imagine a more hopeful future.

Berkeley RADICAL: This performance is part of the Citizenship thematic strand, which spotlights the human side of the current debate on immigration and nationalism. By sharing unique perspectives on the threats to—and responsibilities of—citizenship, the artists included here illustrate the universal need for belonging and home, and invoke the very real sense of urgency and peril that pervades the world today.

Jazz

Charles Lloyd & The Marvels with special guest Lucinda Williams

Featuring Greg Leisz, Reuben Rodgers, and Eric Harland

Program: In response to the presidential inauguration of 2017, saxophonist and NEA Jazz Master Charles Lloyd and his band The Marvels joined with folk-rock pioneer Lucinda Williams to release a rendition of Bob Dylan’s protest song “Masters of War.” The success of that single has led to a new collaboration and Blue Note album—to be released in June 2018—that adds Williams’ distinctive voice to an all-star lineup that already includes jazz-Americana heroes Greg Leisz on pedal steel, Reuben Rodgers on bass, and Eric Harland on drums.

Pavel Zuštiak, concept, direction, choreography

Christian Frederickson, music composition and sound design

Joe Levasseur, lighting design

Simon Harding, set design

Ásta Bennie Hostetter, costume design

Megan Carter, dramaturgy

Alexandra Collier, text

Program: In this multisensory work, choreographer Pavel Zuštiak and his Palissimo Company ask, “Where do we find beauty today, and does it need our defense?” Zuštiak creates an immersive visual experience for Custodians of Beauty, combining movement with imagery, light, and sound in response to a 2009 speech by Pope Benedict XVI, reminding artists of their responsibilities as “custodians of beauty in the world.” Through formal abstraction and restrained, minimalist gesture, Zuštiak explores the human body as sculpture, emotional trigger, and political symbol.

Big Dance Theater

17c

Conceived and directed by Annie-B Parson

Co-directed by Paul Lazar

Choreographed by Annie-B Parson and the company

Program: For more than two decades, the Obie Award-winning Big Dance Theater has been making uncategorizable, galvanizing work that undermines genre boundaries. The company's latest effort is a portrait of Samuel Pepys, the outlandish 17th-century politician whose obsessive, tell-all diaries are a startling precursor to our own social media culture. The ensemble weaves music, dance, video, and text in an exploration—part celebration, part inquisition—of the moral murkiness of Pepys' legacy as statesman and notorious philanderer, juxtaposing his own writings with the radical feminism of his contemporary, the playwright Margaret Cavendish, and the cult of online annotators at pepysdiary.com.

Berkeley RADICAL: This performance is part of the Women's Work thematic strand, which shines a spotlight on remarkable female artists—directors, musicians, and choreographers—and explores the role of women creators in the arts and beyond.

Akram Khan
XENOS (West Coast Premiere, Cal Performances Co-commission)

Program: Revered dancer, choreographer, and theater artist Akram Khan is known for physically demanding, visually spellbinding solo productions that combine Indian kathak with modern dance, and mine personal and cultural histories in works of sublime storytelling. XENOS is Khan's final solo creation before his planned retirement as a performer, and reveals the beauty and horrors of the human condition through the myth of Prometheus, from the perspective of an Indian soldier recruited to fight in the trenches of WWI for the British Crown. "Xenos" means "stranger" or “alien” in Greek, and the work explores the soldier’s alienation as he is trapped between two cultures in the colonial system.

by William Shakespeare

Arthur Nauzyciel, director

Program: French director Arthur Nauzyciel revives his production of Julius Caesar, first created for Boston's influential American Repertory Theater in a US election year, 10 years ago. Now artistic director of the Théâtre National de Bretagne, Nauzyciel highlights the continuing relevance of Shakespeare's great political tragedy—with costumes and design that evoke the era of JFK, a live jazz trio, and provocative staging that refocuses the action so that the tyranny unfolds as the dream of a minor character, Brutus' slave Lucius.

La Lagrime di San Pietro (Tears of Saint Peter) (Bay Area Premiere)

Orlando di Lasso, composer

Grant Gershon, conductor

Peter Sellars, director

Program: Director Peter Sellars returns to Cal Performances with the Bay Area Premiere of an a cappella work by one of the Renaissance’s most revered composers. Orlando di Lasso’s Lagrime di San Pietro (Tears of Saint Peter) depicts the grief and remorse of the Apostle Peter, as he reflects on his fateful denial of Jesus on the day of his arrest. The madrigal is sung by the 21 voices of the formidable Los Angeles Master Chorale, with Sellars’ stark staging illuminating the biblical story’s striking connections to the concerns of our modern world.

Dance

Eifman Ballet

Pygmalion

Program: For forty years, across a shifting political climate for artists in his native Russia, the defiantly controversial choreographer Boris Eifman has created “works that hinge on extreme theatricality, acrobatic pas de deux, and spectacular effects” (The New Yorker) for his St. Petersburg company. In The Pygmalion Effect, the company dances a brand-new ballet inspired by George Bernard Shaw’s Pygmalion, set to a score by Johann Strauss.
