Indaba

Indaba (in-da’ba’) is a Zulu word from South Africa meaning to bring together the right people…at the right time…to ask the right questions…in order to arrive at the right answers. It is an invitation to gather for the telling of our stories.

This Indaba is a choral work composed by the members of Sweet Honey in the Rock in 2005. It was commissioned by the Washington Performing Arts Society for the Men and Women of the Gospel and the Children of the Gospel in Washington, D.C., in celebration of its 40th anniversary and its work in bringing art and community together. The work, in seven movements, is a musical dialogue between youth and their elders. It begins with a “Prayer,” performed by Sweet Honey, asking that the community be blessed with children. The prayer is followed by an affirmation from the elders to the youth that “We Believe in You.” The youth then affirm that though they may be young, they understand that they are each a “Members of the World Community” and then raise the “Questions” that all youth raise. The teenagers in dialogue with their parents try to figure out whether it is possible for them to “Get Along,” particularly as they try to share their “Vision of Tomorrow.” The entire community (including the audience) is invited to come together in the final song celebrating “Joy in the Morning.”

The music of Indaba represents the diversity of the African-American community and combines a full spectrum of musical styles of from the Sweet Honey pallet, including the traditional long meter hymn form of Black congregations, “classical” choral forms set against rhythms from the African Diaspora, choral jazz, rap and gospel.

Sweet Honey thanks you for being part of the Indaba community and for participating in this evening’s dialogue.

Enjoy!

About the Artists

Dr. Ysaye M. Barnwell is a native New Yorker now living in Washington, D.C., where, since 1979, she has performed with internationally acclaimed a cappella quintet, Sweet Honey in the Rock. She appears as a vocalist and/or instrumentalist on more than 25 recordings with Sweet Honey and other artists. Dr. Barnwell spends much of her time off stage as a master teacher and clinician in cultural performance theory and voice production. Her workshop, Building a Vocal Community: Singing in the African American Tradition, has been conducted all over the United States, Great Britain and Australia, making her work in the field a real source of inspiration for her performances on stage.

While her 15-year study of the violin beginning at age two was the foundation of her musical career, Dr. Barnwell holds bachelor and master of science degrees in philosophy in crani-o-facial studies and a master of science in public health. She was, for 12 years, a professor at the College of Dentistry at Howard University, and in addition administered and implemented community health projects.

In the best and in the hardest of times, Sweet Honey in the Rock has come in song to communities across the United States and around the world, raising her voice in hope, love, justice, peace and resistance. Sweet Honey invites her audiences to open their minds and hearts and think about who we are and what we do to one another and to our fellow creatures on this planet.

Sweet Honey in the Rock is Ysaye Maria Barnwell, Nitanju Bolade Casel, Aisha Kahlil, Carol Maillard, Louise Robinson and Shirley Childress Saxton. The group’s latest release, No Mirrors in My Nana’s House, illustrated by Brian Pinkney (for release in March 2008); compiled and edited Continuum: The First Songbook of Sweet Honey in the Rock; produced the 25th anniversary CD of Sweet Honey in the Rock. …twenty-five…. and is the featured storyteller and singer on her release Um Hmn, a feast of African-American stories, poems and songs for young audiences.

Nitanju Bolade Casel first came to Sweet Honey in the Rock after four years of studying, performing and cultural organizing in Dakar, Senegal, where she co-founded, with Marie Guinier, ADEA (Artistes des Echanges Africaines). Dedicated to the exchange of ideas and services between African of the diaspora, ADEA worked in alliance with local artists, the National Council of Negro Women, the National Theatre Daniel Sorano, the University of Dakar, Air Afrique radio (O.R.T.S.) and television programming, the Schomberg Center for Research and Development, and the late Dr. Ewart Guinier of Harvard University. Ms. Casel has brought the improvisational rhythms of hip-hop and jazz to Sweet Honey in the Rock’s palette since her arrival in 1985. She is currently co-director, with her sister, Aisha Kahlil, of First World Productions, a cultural and educational organization in the performance arts. Ms. Casel made her film debut appearance in Beloved, directed by Jonathan Demme.

Aisha Kahlil joined the group in 1981. As an experienced jazz vocalist and African dance and song artist, she has moved Sweet Honey in the Rock into new territory in improvisation. She is Sweet Honey in the Rock’s strongest blues singer. In 1994, CASA (Contemporary A Cappella Society of America) named Ms. Kahlil as best soloist in a cappella music for her performance of “See See Rider” and “Fulani Chant.” Some of the group’s most innovative and experimental work occurs in the performance of other compositions, including “Fulani Chant” and “Wodaabe Nights.” “Wodaabe Nights” was included in the sound score for the 1998 PBS film series Africans in America, produced by WGBH-TV. “Fulani Chant” was included in Climb Against the Odds benefit recording for Breast Cancer Funds and the film score for Down in the Delta, directed by Maya Angelou. Recently added to her acting credits is her debut appearance in Beloved, directed by Jonathan Demme. Ms. Kahlil composed the closing song for the American Bible Society video featuring Sweet Honey in the Rock. She also composed and performed original music for the film Freedom Song, starring Danny Glover and directed by Phil Robinson with music by Sweet Honey in the Rock and James Horner, and appeared with Sweet Honey in the Rock as guest artist on the TNT special A Tribute to Joni Mitchell. She is currently at work on a recording project featuring her original compositions and arrangements.

Carol Maillard was born and raised in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and attended Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., where she studied violin and theater. She began her performance career at the D.C. Black Repertory Theater as a member of the professional company. Carol has worked extensively both on and off Broadway, in many national and international tours, on TV and in film. She has produced, written and recorded with Sweet Honey in the Rock and other well known artists. Her arrangement of “Motherless Child” is featured in the film The Visit and the documentary film on Dorothy Height, We Are Not Vanishing. She is a published writer and lives in New York City with her son, Jordan. She is a founding member of Sweet Honey in the Rock. SGMKJ!

She went on to play the accordion and concert bass, later joining the all-city orchestra and the citywide chorus. She studied music while attending the High School of Music and Art in New York. She graduated from Howard University in Washington, D.C., with a bachelor of fine arts degree.

Ms. Robinson’s first professional job was with the Arena Stage’s company, Living Stage. She then moved on to join Robert Hook’s newly formed acting ensemble at the D.C. Black Repertory Company. It was there that she, along with Mie, Carol Maillard and Bernice Reagon, formed the a cappella quartet, Sweet Honey in the Rock.

Ms. Robinson moved back to New York several years later to resume her acting career, and performed both on- and off-Broadway in such productions as Reggae, Tin-types, I’m Getting My Act Together and Taking It on the Road, Ain’t Misbehavin’ and Little Shop of Horrors.

Founded in 1980 by Artistic Director Richard Grant, the Pacific Mozart Ensemble (PME) delivers passionate, expert and engaging choral performances of music from Brahms to Brubeck to the Beach Boys. Over the years, PME has grown to fill an important role in the cultural life of the San Francisco Bay Area, presenting courageous and innovative programs of many works that have never been performed in concert settings. In 2005, the group’s 25th anniversary season, PME named Dr. Lynne Morrow as the group’s Music Director.

PME is perhaps best known for its collaborations with contemporary composers and artists, including John Adams, Dave Brubeck, David Lang, Meredith Monk, the American Bach Soloists, Berkeley Symphony Orchestra, the Oakland-East Bay Symphony and many others. PME was nominated for a “Best Choral Performance” Grammy Award in 2006 for the Harmonia Mundi recording of Bernstein’s Mass with the Deutsches Symphonie-Orchester under the direction of Kent Nagano; this Harmonia Mundi recording went on to receive a 2006 Grammy Award nomination for Best Choral Performance.

Dr. Morrow teaches at Sonoma State University, where she directs the vocal and opera/music theater programs, and also serves as Music Director of the Oakland-East Bay Symphony Chorus. Dr. Morrow received her DMA in opera coaching and choral conducting from Indiana University-Bloomington.

In fall 2003, Dr. Morrow helped to found Quantum Opera Theatre, which seeks to broaden the formal and stylistic links between opera and musical theater by working with composers on new works and hopes to provide an environment to workshop new musical theater each year. She is also the host for the Stern Grove Music Festival.

The Oakland School for the Arts Youth Choir is composed of Vocal Emphasis high school students at Oakland School for the Arts (OSA). Oakland School for the Arts is a pre-professional Arts Academy with an intense college-preparatory curriculum in downtown Oakland. A charter middle and high school, OSA will be moving into the Oakland Fox Theatre in fall 2008.

The vocal department at OSA is an award-winning department and is demand for performance throughout the Bay Area. The choirs of OSA are known for their varied repertoire that includes everything from a South African freedom song to a Chopin prelude, from singing a cappella to shaking the rafters with a gospel classic. Oakland School for the Arts is on the move, and you will witness that as you listen to the OSA Youth Choir.

Singer-songwriter Melanie DeMore has a remarkable voice, weaving the fibers of African-American folk music with soulful ballads, spirituals and her own original music. Ms. DeMore beautifully brings her audience together through her music and commentary. She has toured extensively, singing at festivals, universities, in coffee houses and concert halls. Her recordings Share My Song and Come Follow Me are both heartfelt collections of her music.

In addition to her solo work, Ms. DeMore facilitates vocal workshops for professional and community-based choral groups and has taught her program, Sound Awareness, a cappella. Ms. DeMore traces her interest in music to her parents who started one of the first Black theater groups in Alaska in the early 1930s. Ms. DeMore majored in music at Incarnate Word University in San Antonio, Texas, and later worked as a studio musician, was a member of a melodrama company, sang in an all women’s Black a cappella group, Scintilla, sang for commercials, and wrote music for the theater.
Ms. DeMore describes her music as “in the African-American folk tradition of Odetta,” to whom she has often been compared, noting, “I have a very, very, very low voice.” She has shared the stage with numerous artists including Buffy Saint Marie, John Prine, Josh White, Jr., Laura Nyro, Sweet Honey in the Rock and Pete Seeger.

Valerie L. Brown is a music minister, professional vocalist, arranger, composer and producer. Her musical career spans four decades, from her formative years singing in the church, to being honored as “Best Female Vocalist in the Army” during a tour of duty in the late 1970s, to her contributions to the “Womyn’s Music” movement (as “Sarko”) and direction of VOICES: Lesbian Choral Ensemble. Ms. Brown has performed in venues as diverse as the Santa Rita Prison, the Monterey Jazz Festival and Carnegie Hall.

Ms. Brown earned a bachelor’s degree in computer science from San Francisco State University, with a minor in voice from the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. She worked for 13 years in the corporate banking world with Wells Fargo in their Electronic Banking and Loss Prevention departments, and spent five years as a Registered Representative and Senior Associate with WMA Securities, Inc. and the National Association of Securities Dealers.

As a disability rights activist, Ms. Brown participated in successful litigation for the enforcement of ADA statutes. She worked with the Bay Area Outreach & Recreational Program, coaching wheelchair basketball and soccer in their Youth Sports Program, and was a member of the silver-medal U.S. Women’s Wheelchair Basketball team in the 1992 Paralympics in Barcelona, Spain.

The year 2001 marked a period of clarity and transformation for Ms. Brown. She left the corporate world to devote time to personal spiritual development and explore ministry in music. Along the path, Dominion a cappella ensemble was born. Dominion is an ensemble of individuals who not only can sing, but also can testify about life’s struggles and how each of them overcame them to sing rich harmonies and transform audiences.

In addition to her work with Dominion, Ms. Brown is the Choir Director for Unity Palo Alto Community Church, Creative Arts Minister/Vice-Chair of OneLife Institute, sings with the Grammy Award-nominated Pacific Mozart Ensemble and is a co-founder of blak&brown Productions.
