CAL PERFORMANCES AT UC BERKELEY PRESENTS
MYRA MELFORD & SNOWY EGRET, IN LANGUAGE OF DREAMS
AN IMMERSIVE JAZZ WORK WITH VIDEO, MOVEMENT, AND NARRATION,
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 2016

Berkeley, October 24, 2016 — Cal Performances at UC Berkeley presents inventive and acclaimed pianist and composer Myra Melford in her genre-blending opus Language of Dreams, for one night only on Saturday, November 19 at 8pm in Zellerbach Hall. The immersive work, performed by Melford’s quintet Snowy Egret, is inspired by Uruguayan author Eduardo Galeano’s magical-realist depictions of the pre-colonial Americas. Using the imaginative narrative techniques in Galeano’s Memory of Fire trilogy as her guidepost, Melford incorporates music, text, movement, and video imagery into her expansive work, to reflect on our collective histories and our paths forward as “Americans.”

Melford has been a professor in the UC Berkeley music department for the past 12 years, teaching composition, improvisation, and jazz, and in that time has maintained an active international career as a touring artist, earning many accolades for her work, including a Guggenheim Fellowship, an Alpert Award, and a Doris Duke Artist Award. She is known for cultivating exceptional chemistry within her ensembles, writing for each musician’s unique talents, and structuring her compositions to invite spontaneous interaction and invention. Named the 2016 Midsize Ensemble of the Year by the Jazz Journalists Association, Snowy Egret is a quintet comprised of many of the best and brightest improvisers in jazz today: with Melford on piano, Ron Miles on cornet, Liberty Ellman on guitar, Stomu Takeishi on acoustic bass guitar, and Tyshawn Sorey on drums. For Language of Dreams, Snowy Egret’s work is enhanced with surrealist movement by dancer/chorographer Oguri; lush, abstract visuals by video artist David Szlasa; and narration by vocalist Sofia Rei, who recites texts from Galeano’s work in English and Spanish. As the Los Angeles Times noted, “full of odd-angled rhythms and deft improvisations that echo with the sounds of Africa and the East, Melford’s uncompromising voice soars.”

Language of Dreams is constructed as a suite of short compositions—15 pieces, each three to eight minutes long—which are inspired by Galeano’s texts. Melford’s music is informed by vernacular American musical idioms such as blues, jazz, and Latin dance rhythms; her composed musical material directs improvisation not only by the musicians, but also for dancer, narrator, and videographer. The New York Times says Language of Dreams “rings of familiarity and mystique, rumination and seduction, keeping all possibilities close at hand.” Language of Dreams premiered in San Francisco in 2013; this is only the second time it has been performed in the Bay Area. In September 2016 Melford joined Wynton Marsalis and the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra at the Paramount Theatre for Cal Performances’ debut Oakland concert, performing Jazz at Lincoln Center saxophonist Ted Nash’s arrangement of “The Strawberry,” a piece from Language of Dreams.

As part of the presentation of Language of Dreams, Melford and her ensemble will participate in a range of residency activities on the UC Berkeley campus and in the community. Melford and UC Berkeley comparative literature professor Ivonne del Valle will speak in a Page & Stage book club discussion at The Musical Offering, 2430 Bancroft Way, Berkeley, on Wednesday, November 16 at 6pm, focusing on a discussion of Genesis, the first book of Eduardo Galeano’s Memory of Fire trilogy. Page & Stage tickets are $5 and include one complimentary non-alcoholic beverage. Members of Snowy Egret, as well as dancer Oguri, and video artist David Szlasa, will convene for a Composer Colloquium in 125 Morrison Hall, on Friday, November 18 from 3–4:30pm, in a discussion about the process of creating and performing Language of Dreams. A post-performance discussion is planned with the artists on November 19, free and open to all ticket holders.

About Myra Melford
Myra Melford emerged in the early 1990s as one of the most highly acclaimed young jazz pianists of the day. Her career has been defined by a restless curiosity and openness to collaborative creativity that is reflected in her highly personal voice as an improviser and composer, a voice that incorporates such wide-ranging influences as Chicago blues, Zen Buddhism, and the “organic philosophy” of Frank Lloyd Wright. Melford was the recipient of the prestigious Alpert Award in the Arts for Music in 2012, as well as a Guggenheim Fellowship and a Doris Duke Performing Artists Award in 2013. A music professor at UC Berkeley since 2004, she was an artist-in-residence and artistic director of the New Frequencies Festival at YBCA in San Francisco from 2013-15, leading an initiative to increase appreciation of jazz, particularly among women and youth. In addition to a 2015 Snowy Egret album, recent recordings include her first piano solo album, Life Carries Me This Way (2013), and Dialogue (2016), with frequent duo partner, clarinetist Ben Goldberg.

About Cal Performances
Cal Performances is the performing arts presenter and producer of the University of California, Berkeley, fulfilling its mission by presenting, producing, and commissioning renowned and emerging artists in music, dance, and theater. Cal Performances reaches over 150,000 people annually through concerts and campus and community events, including talks, symposia, lecture demonstrations, and academic courses based on Cal Performances’ season. Under the leadership of Matias Tarnopolsky, the organization launched Berkeley RADICAL (Research and Development Initiative in Creativity, Arts, and Learning) to cultivate the artistic literacy of future audiences and connect some of the most innovative artists in the world with the intellectual capital of UC Berkeley. The 2016/17 season is the second season for Berkeley RADICAL, and embraces three strands of artistic exploration: Inclusion, Innovation, and Immersion. More information on Berkeley RADICAL can be found at calperformances.org/berkeley-radical.
