CAL PERFORMANCES AT UC BERKELEY PRESENTS
CLASSICAL SINGER JULIA BULLOCK AND PIANIST LAURA POE
AS PART OF CAL PERFORMANCES AT HOME,
PERFORMING ARTS STREAMING SERIES
THURSDAY, JANUARY 14 AT 7PM (PST)

Fall 2020 streaming series concludes with this concert;
Spring series to be announced in January

This performance will be viewable for three months following the premiere

Berkeley, December 17, 2020 — Cal Performances at UC Berkeley presents classical singer Julia Bullock and pianist Laura Poe in a virtual recital premiere that will begin streaming on Thursday, January 14 at 7pm (PST). The performance is one of 16 new, professionally produced full-length performances in the Fall 2020 Cal Performances at Home performing arts streaming series. The fall series included the premiere of a new performance each week beginning on October 1, 2020, and concluding with Bullock and Poe’s performance. A new series of performances slated for spring 2021 will be announced in January. On the evenings of each streaming premiere, a special digital “watch party” features a participatory live chat element. More information about Cal Performances at Home can be found at calperformances.org/at-home/.

WHO Classical singer Julia Bullock returns to Cal Performances following her 2018 Hertz Hall recital and portrayal of both Josephine Baker and French mystic and activist Simone Weil at the 2016 Ojai at Berkeley festival. Recording this recital from Bleibach, Germany, Bullock is joined by pianist Laura Poe for one of Bullock’s characteristically diverse and thoughtfully curated programs, traversing art song, contemporary works, and selections from African-American jazz and blues.

WHAT Professionally produced, full-length streaming performance.
