ENGLAND'S IMPECCABLE PRACTITIONERS OF POLYPHONY
THE TALLIS SCHOLARS RETURN TO CAL PERFORMANCES FRIDAY,
DECEMBER 1, 2006 AT 8:00 P.M. AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

SIGHTLINES: Pre-performance talk with Tallis Scholars director Peter Phillips, moderated by Paul Ellison, Director of Music, Church of the Advent, San Francisco

BERKELEY, October 20, 2006 – Sold-out every year and back by popular demand, the London-based Tallis Scholars return to Cal Performances Friday, December 1, 2006 at 8:00 p.m. in First Congregational Church. One of the world's premier practitioners of sacred choral music, the ten-member Tallis Scholars perform without instrumental accompaniment in order to exemplify the purity and clarity that defines the Renaissance vocal repertoire. "The Tallis Scholars remains one of the best ensembles performing this music now, and its sound is as richly blended and as beautiful as ever" (The New York Times). The Berkeley program is made up of "a succession of masterpieces I've been wanting to do for a long time," said Director Peter Phillips. The evening begins with Thomas Tallis's "Loquebantur variis linguis" and Christian Tye's Missa Western Wynde. The second half of the program is made up of three works that have been newly edited for this tour. Those compositions are Philippe de Monte's "O suavitas et dulcedo" and "O bone Jesu"; and Giovanni Pierluigi da Palestrina's "O bone Jesu." The concert concludes with John Taverner's "Quemadmodum" and "Mater Christi."

A pre-performance Sightlines talk will be given by Tallis Scholars director Peter Phillips, moderated by Paul Ellison, Director of Music, Church of the Advent, San Francisco on Friday, December 1 at 7:00 p.m. This event is free to ticket holders.

THE TALLIS SCHOLARS

Founded in 1973 by Peter Phillips, The Tallis Scholars perform more than 70 concerts each year in both sacred and secular venues around the world. Their remarkable performance history includes a 1994 concert at the Sistine Chapel, marking the restoration of the Michelangelo frescoes. Later that year, the ensemble returned to Rome for a concert at the Basilica of Santa Maria Maggiore in commemoration of the 400th anniversary of Giovanni Palestrina's death. In 1998, they celebrated their 25th anniversary with a unique concert in London's National Gallery, where they premiered a John Taverner work written for the occasion and narrated by Sting. The group has also performed with rock icon Sir Paul McCartney. The Tallis Scholars continue to commission new pieces and recently premiered two works written for 40 voices, I have thee by the hand, O Man by Robin Walker and When the wet wind sings by Errollyn Wallen.

The Tallis Scholars' discography includes more than 40 releases, many of them award-winners. Their recording of Josquin des Prés's Missa La sol fa re mi and Missa Pange lingua won Gramophone magazine's 1987 Record of the Year award, making them the only early music recipients of this coveted award. In 1989, the French magazine Diapason gave two of its Diapason d'Or de l'Année awards for recordings of a mass and motets by Orlandus Lassus and for a recording of Josquin's two masses, which were based on the chanson "L'Homme armé". Their recording of Palestrina's Missa Assumpta est Maria and Missa Sicut Liliun was awarded Gramophone's Early Music Award in 1991. Three years later, they received the Early Music Award for a Cipriano de Rore and Josquin des Prés recording, a disc that was also named People's Choice in a Classic FM/Gramophone competition. In 2001, the Tallis Scholars released a CD of the first four Magnificats on by Nicolas Gombert, a uniquely expressive master of the Flemish Renaissance, followed by a CD of Magnificats Nos. 5-8 in 2002.

The ensemble's CDs, as well as a 2004 DVD based on the BBC program entitled Playing Elizabeth's Tune: The Tallis Scholars Sing William Byrd, are released under Gimell Records. The company was founded in 1981 by producer Steve C. Smith and Peter Phillips exclusively for The Tallis Scholars' recordings. Their award-winning records—products of the consistently high artistic and technical standards achieved by Gimell Records and The Tallis Scholars' unique partnership—have pioneered the re-appraisal of unaccompanied 15th- and 16th-century sacred choral music. The Tallis Scholars have recorded works by composers such as Byrd, Tallis, Palestrina, Josquin des Prés, and Victoria, as well as those of lesser-known composers, including Jacob Clemens non Papa and Frei Manuel Cardoso.

PETER PHILLIPS

Composer, conductor and writer Peter Phillips is known for his life-long dedication to the performance and research of Renaissance polyphony. After winning a scholarship to Oxford in 1972, Phillips studied Renaissance music with David Wulstan and Denis Arnold. Since then, he has directed The Tallis Scholars in over 1,300 concerts, encouraging international interest in polyphony. Aside from The Tallis Scholars, he works with other specialist ensembles such as the Collegium Vocale of Ghent, the BBC Singers, Officium of Lisbon, and Tudor Choir of Seattle. Also a successful writer, Phillips's first book, English Sacred Music 1549 – 1649, was published in 1991, and his second book, What We Really Do—a humorous account of what touring is like—was published in 2003. In 1995, he became owner and publisher of the oldest continuously published music journal in the world, The Musical Times.
